INFORMATION REGARDING STANDARD EYE DROPS THAT MAY BE USED AT YOUR VISIT

Topical Aneathetic Drops:

Proparacaine/Fluorescein and Benoxinate is used in the eyes as an anesthetic to numb the pain that may occur during eye procedures (e.g., measurement of intraocular pressure like tonometry). With a single drop, the onset of anesthesia begins within 30 seconds and persists for 20 minutes or longer. Therefore, it is important for you NOT TO RUB YOUR EYES FOR THE NEXT 20 MINUTES. Prolonged use of eye anesthetics is not recommended; doing so could cause permanent eye problems (e.g., corneal opacities) or loss of vision.

Side Effects: Redness, burning, or stinging of the eye(s) may occur. If these effects persist or worsen, notify your doctor.

Dilating Drops

Dilating drops are used to dilate or enlarge the pupils of the eye to allow the Ophthalmologist to get a better view of the inside of your eye.

Dilating drops frequently blur vision for a length of time which varies from person to person and may make bright lights bothersome. It is not possible for your Ophthalmologist to predict how much your vision will be affected. Because driving may be difficult immediately after an examination, it's best if you make arrangements not to drive yourself.

Adverse reaction, such as acute angle-closure glaucoma, may be triggered from the dilating drops. This is extremely rare and treatable with immediate medical attention.

I hereby authorize Dr. Brodbaker and/or such assistants as may be designated by him/her to administer dilating eye drops. The eye drops are necessary to diagnose my condition.
